Specification

The examiner has not checked the specification to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors (grammatical, typographical and idiomatic). Cooperation of the applicant(s) is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant(s) may become aware of in the specification, in the claims and in any future amendment(s) that applicant(s) may file.

Applicant(s) is also requested to complete the status of any copending applications referred to in the specification by their Attorney Docket Number or Application Serial Number, if any.

The status of the parent application(s) and/or any other application(s) cross-referenced to this application, if any, should be updated in a timely manner.

Claim Objections

Claim 42 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s), or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form. Applicant is advised that if this claim is properly rewritten to constitute a patentably distinct conversion process claim, it may be withdrawn from consideration as being non-elected by original presentation since applicant has already had an action on the merits for the catalyst composition.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

Art Unit: 1755

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 and 20-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims are indefinite in the language "based on" because it is unclear whether this has some specific meaning. The claims are further indefinite in the language "finely divided" because this constitutes relative terminology with no point of reference.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1 and 20-42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the provided translation of UK 0 448 000.

The instantly claimed invention is a catalyst and method for the production thereof, wherein the catalyst is of the pentasil type and comprises specific crystallite sizes, at least about 20% of which are agglomerated to form specifically sized agglomerates.

The UK translation discloses a catalyst composition and method for the production thereof that appears nearly identical to all limitations claimed herein by applicants. See page 6 for the teaching of average diameter of crystallites, the aluminum oxide binder, and the agglomerate size. Page 7 teaches amount of agglomerate, surface area, pore volume and so forth. Pages 8-14 detail the method to obtain the inventive catalyst.

The only difference between the inventive claims and the reference disclosure appears to be the reference designation of crystallite size as at least 0.1 microns and at most 0.9 microns. The instant claims recite the crystalline size to be from about 0.01 microns to about 0.1 micron. Since "about" includes 0.1, the ranges overlap and overlapping ranges have long been held to constitute a prima facie case of obviousness.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

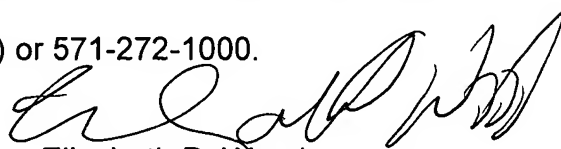

Applicants are advised that any evidence to be provided under 37 CFR 1.131 or 1.132 and any amendments to the claims and specification should be submitted prior to final rejection to be considered timely. It is anticipated that the next office action will be a final rejection.
